Dear Mr. Evans,

I'm writing this letter to let you know how much you oil additive "Power Up" has save our department in fuel.

Our city mechanic has done a fuel consumption study on our fleet for the past six months and the study has revealed that we have saved form ten to twenty percent in fuel depending on the individual characteristics of each patrol car.

As you know, we conducted this study in secrecy to find out if the officers notice any in crease in performance. You will be glad to know that approximately half of the officers mentioned in idle conversion with our mechanic that they had found a noticeable increase in power. The officers were under the assumption that the had put a higher performance equipment package on their engines. They were very surprised when they found out the additional power came form an oil additive.

If you would please bring some of your business cards to us, I will give them to Police Chief's in the surrounding areas. Thank you and I hope to see you soon.

Sincerely,

Robert A. Schrader
